Begin 2011 with flow. Increase your positive energy. Focus upon your strengths and well being enhancing your business performance and start tapping into what you and your organization do well.

On March 1, 2011 we will kick off a four part workshop series at the Travis offices (Zürich). Our theme is what is now known as Psychological Capital (PsyCap). This is an evidence based approach that has proven it can support your efforts to increase productivity as you win the hearts and minds of people who work with you. As human social beings, we are all wired to experience both positivity and negativity in life. Just like undesired events create negative feelings, positive emotions can become contagious and be carried over to work to get outstanding results.

Dr. Roman Borboa

The main elements of PsyCap center on hope, self efficacy, resilience and optimism. Come to our launch PsyCap session and gain a new understanding on how you can positively transform your way of working. Leverage from your best assets and increase yours and other's success through performance. With an understanding of PsyCap, you can assist and support your people to become 'heros' in their own right. Remember, positivity breeds positivity impacting health, relationships and work results.

This initial one day workshop focuses on the theme of hope. It will be followed by three additional sessions covering the other three topics of efficacy/confidence, optimism, and resilience running in April, May and June. Please reserve your place by sending an email (Including full name, address, e-address and telephone number) to info@borboa.ch. We look forward to working with you in this workshop series focusing on hope, efficacy, resilience and optimism.
